Jeanne directs the iconic organization committed to restoring a culture of life in the United States, most notably through the annual March for Life in Washington, D.C., held around the anniversary of Roe v. Wade and through the growing State March for Life program.

She frequently speaks to students, pro-life groups, churches, pregnancy care centers, and other groups nationally and internationally. Jeanne also serves as a consultant to the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops Pro-Life Committee.

Before coming to the March for Life, Jeanne worked with the Family Research Council, where she focused on issues related to the inherent dignity of the human person, including abortion, women’s health, and end-of-life issues. Jeanne also worked for the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. Her federal government experience includes global health policy and domestic and international healthcare issues.
